

Marie Ginette AMANI, takes the step towards her vision

Abidjan (2002) - It was in 2002, in the midst of the socio-political crisis in Côte d'Ivoire, her native country, that Marie Ginette AMANI, a young student, decided to take the step towards the vision she had always had of contributing to the assistance of the most disadvantaged and vulnerable people.

From then on, she undertook to carry out investigations in the field in order to convince herself personally and definitively of the realities on the ground and to determine the real needs and expectations of the targets.

Taking advantage of her research work for the elaboration of her thesis, she conducted meetings in Abidjan but also in the interior of Côte d'Ivoire, exchanging with the populations of the underprivileged areas, the small street artisans and the villages.

Her initiative also led her to collect the advice of friends and people of experience in order to better orient herself and convince herself of the originality of her vision but also of the innovative and efficient aspect of the future actions to be carried out.

These explorations and interviews reinforced the young student's vision and her initial conviction to place her action within a structured framework.

General Assembly: Why the Founding President created the FAI

Abidjan (2004) - On the initiative of the Founding President of the AMAN-International Foundation, a constitutive General Assembly was held on October 14, 2004 for the validation of all the founding texts

The Founding President, President of the Board of Directors of the FAI, Marie Ginette AMANI, convened a general assembly in which the founding members of the FAI took part.

Before starting the work of the general assembly, the President shared her vision and explained to the assembly why she created this foundation. She explained that she had also given several interviews to the national and international press in order to communicate the Foundation's program.

The texts previously elaborated in 2003 were validated by the whole assembly which shared unanimously the vision of its President.

Thereafter, the members of the Executive Board and the Board of Directors of the FAI were determined according to the procedures indicated in the statutes and the internal regulations of the AMAN-International Foundation.

The meeting ended in a friendly atmosphere and with great motivation.

Why did she create the AMAN-International Foundation?
